The research, service, and educational staff conducts research studies and service activities relating to problems of management, organization, policies, merchandising, sales, costs, competition, and membership, arising in connection with the cooperative marketing of agricultural products and the cooperative purchase of farm supplies and services; publishes the results of such studies; confers and advises with officials of farmers' cooperative associations; and cooperates with educational agencies, cooperative associations and others in the dissemination of information relating to cooperative principles and practices.

FOREWARD

About 90 farmers' associations engaged in cooperative marketing or purchasing are publishing their own periodicals or have selected established periodicals as their official publications, in order to keep their members informed regarding the work of the association. Their publications vary widely in size, shape, character and contents. They range from one or two mimeographed sheets issued at irregular intervals, giving figures on shipments and prices, to illustrated weekly or monthly magazines carrying information on all phases of the production and marketing of the commodities handled.

The following list has been compiled from periodicals received by the Cooperative Division of the Farm Credit Administration and represents the sixteenth issue of this compilation. It includes only publications sponsored by marketing or purchasing associations or those which have been made the official organs of such associations.

In addition to the publications listed, there are many issued by general farm organizations or issued in behalf of agriculture, which give considerable space to the cooperative marketing of farm products and the cooperative purchase of farm supplies.
